

26: Bröning--75
116, 505, 576

(1902) 1928

Jivaro

With reference to canoe voyages I should mention the following: As soon as a settlement is in sight, the Indians put ashore in order to wash and comb themselves and to paint their faces. Then they proceed, and when they pass a settlement, they hit the edge of the canoe with their paddles and give a long oration with a loud voice. They do this until the settlement is out of sight.

Bordesholm, January 1928.

Hans H. Bröning.